To the members of our Collaborative Choir. This Sunday will be their last “performance” before they take a well deserved Summer Break.

Would you be interested in learning more about why we do what we do at Mass?

At their meeting last week, the Collaborative Pastoral Council discussed a questionnaire I had given them regarding the celebration of Sunday Mass at St. Francis and St. Clare Parishes. I had asked them to consider things like “do you feel welcome when you come to Mass?”; “do you think others feel welcome?”; “does the choice of hymns help us to worship better?”; do the homilies encourage you to live your faith?”; “is the way we come for Communion reverent and efficient?” You get the idea. It was a very insightful discussion to say the least! I was so uplifted by how much thought the members put into their comments. The conversation also reminded me that people really do care about the way Mass is celebrated. In other words, the way we celebrate the Mass matters to parishioners.

I would like to expand the conversation to include other parishioners. To that end, Sister Georgeanne Donovan and I are going to offer a Saturday morning series on the instructions of the Mass as set forth by the principals of the Second Vatican Council. Pope Leo encouraged the faithful to re-familiarize themselves with the teaching of Vatican II to grow in faith. During Lent, I held a Saturday morning series on the major teachings of Vatican II. There was quite an interest then to go a bit deeper into some of the teachings. This summer could be a great opportunity to delve into the particulars of what the Council imagined the Mass to be. If this might be of interest to you, please plan on coming on Saturday mornings: July 11, 18, 25 and August 1 from 9:00am-10:00 at St. Clare Parish Hall. If you know others from outside the parish who would be interested, they would be most welcome.

Midsummer Night Nativity

This weekend marks the summer solstice, the longest day of the year. In many years, it feels like this has been the year without a spring, going from winter right into summer. As the days begin to wane, the Church celebrates the Feast of St. John the Baptist on Wednesday. As you recall from Scripture, John himself said that “I must decrease, while He (the Lord) must increase”. It seems appropriate that we celebrate his birthday just as the days begin to grow shorter. (Summer is just beginning... don't be discouraged by shortening days). St. Luke states that Elizabeth was in the sixth month of pregnancy with John when visited by the Blessed Virgin Mary. Therefore John is six months older than Jesus, hence the commemoration of his birth is six months before Christmas. Interestingly, the Blessed Mother and John the Baptist are the only saints whose birthdays we celebrate in the Church calendar. For all the other saints we commemorate the day of their death.

Fr Kevin will celebrate a Mass called the Midsummer's Night Nativity on Wednesday evening, June 24 beginning at 8:00pm at St. Clare Church. Those who have been previously know this to be a beautiful liturgy celebrated in candlelight to emphasize John's spirituality about decreasing in the presence of Incarnation of God.

Thinking of my Dad on Father's Day

As I grow older, I notice that I am more and more grateful for the parents I had. They are both gone to the Lord now; my dad 19 years and my mom 8 years. Those who have lost parents can appreciate me saying that you never get over the loss. Even whilst typing this now their passing is still surreal. Since coming to Braintree three years ago, I have met a number of people who worked with my dad at Purity Supreme/Stop & Shop Supermarkets. Its clear to me he that he made an impression, which is so uplifting. To the world perhaps, just an ordinary guy. To my brother and me the incarnation of love, an embodiment of wisdom not to be undone, and an inspiration for faithfulness. If everyone had a dad like we did, the world would be a far better place. Anyway, I'm thinking of him today, as you can well imagine. A blessed Father's Day to all the dads in the parish! We pray for those who are separated from their children because of work, military service, incarceration, illness or family strife. We ask God's consolation to the father's who have had to bury a child or who have raised their children alone. And of course, we commend to God's mercy all of our father's who have gone before us in faith.

Father's Day

God our Father, in your wisdom and love you made all things. Bless our father. Let the example of his faith and love shine forth. Grant that we, his family, may honor him always with a spirit of profound respect. Grant this through Christ our Lord. Amen.

From
Deacon Joe MacDonald

I'd like to set the scene for the Gospel we just heard. Jesus had been out and about in Capernaum preaching to the crowds, healing every kind of illness and disease. Already the pharisees were beginning to see him as a troublemaker, a blasphemer.

He had commissioned his followers to go out and proclaim the Kingdom of God and to heal the sick. And it all came with a warning. There would be people who did not like what they had to say. They were going to be harassed and persecuted; brought up on charges, brought before judges, turned in by their own family, and scourged in the synagogue.

When Jesus was in public, he was speaking to large crowds so he had to raise his voice so people in the back could hear. At the end of the day, when it got dark the people went back to their homes leaving just Jesus and the twelve. And that's where today's reading starts.

Now, Jesus is alone, in the dark, with the apostles, perhaps sitting around a fire. There aren't any big crowds so he's not raising his voice. It's conversational, a whisper in comparison.

What does he say?

"Don't be afraid of them." In fact, he says three times that they shouldn't be afraid. Don't be afraid of what anyone can do to you.

And he tells them that what he teaches them in private, in the dark, around the fires, behind closed doors, in whispers, is not just for their own private consumption and gratification. It isn't a Jesus and me thing. Quite the contrary. They're told to proclaim the Gospel in the light of day. They're to go out on the rooftops and shout out that the Kingdom of God is among us. What Jesus says in a private room or around a fire is for public consumption.

Jesus knew that his reach, as a man, was limited to where he could walk and who he could see. If the message were to be widespread it would need to be done by others; by the twelve; by the seventy-two, and by us.

Remember the words of Christ just before he ascended into heaven.

"Go, therefore, and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit, teaching them to observe all that I have commanded you."

That's the Christian mission statement. It's our collective and individual mandate given to us by Christ himself, spread the Good News; proclaim salvation and the forgiveness of sin; announce the Kingdom of God; be the evangelist; be the peacemaker; be the healer.

The priest, by himself, doesn't have the reach that all of us have together. He's like Jesus in that respect. And we, within the four walls of a church, hear Jesus speak "in the darkness" and "in whispers." We are fed at the table of God's Word and nourished with the Body and Blood of Christ for one reason – because we are sent from the comfort of our churches into the world to proclaim the Gospel, and at the end of Mass we say "Thanks be to God" for that.

Our job, our mandate, is to take the message we receive here and share it. Bring it to our places of work and play and where we shop; to all the places we find ourselves that the priest does not. Spreading the Good News is not just the responsibility of priests and religious. That obligation belongs to all of us. Christ can be proclaimed everywhere at once if we all take our Baptismal promises seriously.

How can we do that? Here are a few simple things just to get your feet wet. There are hosts of others if we're open to them.

1. Pray that Christ will open our eyes to see the opportunities we have to share the faith.
2. Invite someone to come to church with you.
3. When a piece of Scripture touches you, share it with someone. You can do it on Facebook or Twitter or while playing chess with a friend.
4. Promote a Catholic web page.
5. If you see a good post about faith on social media share it.

The more we do it, the bolder and more confident we will become. We'll spread our wings and find all kinds of other more adventurous ways to spread the Gospel, and we'll be happy to do it.

Don't be surprised if you get some pushback. Some folks won't like it. They might call you a religious fanatic or closed-minded. God forbid they might unfriend you on Facebook.

We are called to be evangelizers. The Baptists do it. Evangelicals do it. Mormons do it. Why aren't we? Why are we so timid? Do we not believe in the treasure we've been given or trust the One who sends us?

Christ has so much to offer the world. So, don't be afraid of them. Don't be afraid of the nay-sayers. Don't be afraid of anyone. Don't be afraid of anything. Do not be afraid. Proclaim Christ from the rooftops! As Nike would put it, "Just do it."

St. Clare Elevator

The St. Clare Elevator is temporarily out of service. We are awaiting the part needed for the repairs. Thank you for your understanding.

This Wednesday is the Midsummer's Night Nativity! This was a big day in the Church in years gone by. It marks the birthday of John the Baptist, who, as you recall in Luke's Gospel is six month's older than Jesus. There was a tradition that Mass be celebrated at sunset. In this way, Mass begins in daylight but ends in darkness (candlelight) so as to capture the spirituality of the Baptist which is "I must decrease so that He may increase". If you are able, please come for Mass Wednesday night at 8:00pm at St. Clare Church. We will begin Mass outside then process in to the Church which will be illuminated in candle light. After Mass there will be a light collation in the Church hall. What a great way to kick off the summer!

Our next Community Meal is scheduled for 5:30 Wednesday, July 1, 2026 at St. Francis.
